Winter Daybreak (Vintage textiles collection)

CROSS STITCH PATTERN READY TO DOWNLOAD, DESIGNED BY Gracewood Stitches

Kathy Bungard of Gracewood stitches, in her own words:

One glorious thing about short winter days is the fact it is easier to catch a sunrise.

This design was inspired by those icy cold mornings when it is clear and the hoar frost covers the panes and just before the sun begins to break over the mountains, the sky is suffused with soft shades of pearl grey, pink and lavender.

Vintage motifs reimagined and laid over those hues express how such a winter's daybreak looks from my window.

Creative Poppy says:

A classic textile motif with a contemporary feel brought by the squares of color in the background. The soft powdery colors are perfect for home decor.

You could however easily switch colors to adapt the piece to your own interior.

Winter Day break was designed in the Assisi technique, where the background is cross stitched and the main motif is left unstitched, in the color of the original fabric - here white.

Note: beaded embellishments.

The piece can also be used for needlepoint (tapestry) projects in which case you would substitute cross stitches for tent stitch and fill in the blank areas with white thread.
