Inside Baba Yaga's Hut (The Samovar)

CROSS STITCH PATTERN READY TO DOWNLOAD, DESIGNED BY Kateryna - Stitchy Princess

Deep in the magic forest lives Baba Yaga, the bony-legged witch of slavic legends. Her wood-cabin is easily recognisable, perched as it is on chicken legs.

Today, Baba Yaga has been expecting a visitor. In the center of the hut, the samovar stands at the ready with hot water and tea. Baba Yaga is wearing her red kerchief and best blouse, with embroidered motifs on the sleeves. Similar motifs adorn the white tablecloth. Notice the feet of the table, in the shape of chicken legs. Look at the picture on the wall and you will recognize the similarities.

The visitor seated opposite Baba Yaga is an elderly man wearing a crown. His grey complexion contrasts with Baba Yaga's rosy cheeks. The cat stands at a safe distance.

The kitchen is particularly neat and cosy. A tiled hearth houses a wood fire. Food and dishes are keeping warm on the kitchen stove. The wooden shutters are closed, keeping the bitter cold outside, and the windows are graced with lace curtains inside. The broom lays under the bench.

The cross stitch pattern is framed with a cheerful motif of steaming tea pot and tea cup.
