On The School benches

CROSS STITCH PATTERN DESIGNED BY Perrette Samouloff

On the school benches reminds us of an old American song, The Dear Old Village School, that goes:

"How oft in childish glee I have read my A. B. C, While my classmates played the scholar or the fool"

Designer Perrette Samouloff captures the spirit of the old school days, with a row of children on their bench, girls and boys, the studious and the distracted, their satchels laid neatly beside their desks.

This is a very colorful piece to cross stitch, with a mix of bright red, orange and blue embroidery floss.

The piece can be stitched as it is. However it can easily be adapted to many projects, such as bags, pencil cases and book covers, even a set of objects. You can use the alphabet to stitch any words of your own.

A cross stitch pattern by Perrette Samouloff.
